THE SPACES

Founded in 1877 in the aftermath of the Commune, La Bellevilloise was Paris's first cooperative, with the aim of giving people of modest means access to political and cultural education.

It was a place of resistance, where the first commercial exchanges "from producer to consumer" took place, and played a leading role in the economic and artistic life of eastern Paris from 1910 to 1949.

Today, La Bellevilloise hosts over 600 events a year, making it a veritable meeting place for culture and exchange.
